Campbell and Reed allegedly committed the murders as retaliation for a drug related robbery committed against them. Investigators believe that Reed and Campbell returned to the scene of the robbery with the intent of killing those that had robbed them. Upon arriving at the residence, the two men became involved in a shootout with the residents where over 20 rounds of gunfire were exchanged. At the end of the shooting two of the people at the home were found dead. After the murders, the Tulsa Police Department requested the assistance of the United States Marshals Service in locating the fugitives. Working together they were able to develop information that Campbell was in the Metro Atlanta area. SERFTF and Oklahoma investigators were able to develop a location for Campbell in the Ben Hill area. After confirming Campbell's presence using surveillance, investigators identified themselves and were forced to breach the door of the residence to make entry. Both subjects were located in the residence and taken into custody. Both subjects have criminal histories that include arrests for weapons and drugs.	  Creason Reed    DeMarco Campbell Wanted for Double Murder

Great Lakes Regional Fugitive Task Force

On December 16, 2004, the Menard County, Illinois, Sheriff requested assistance from the Great Lakes Regional Fugitive Task Force (GLRFTF) in locating and arresting Chad King, who was suspected of shooting and killing his father at their home in rural Menard County. Deputies had been at the residence the night before when the victim reported that Chad King had fought with him and left the residence with a 22-250 high powered rifle. Chad King was charged with unlawful use of weapons and a warrant was issued for his arrest. The GLRFTF began an immediate search for King in Springfield, Illinois. At 8:45 a.m., after being spotted by a Springfield police officer, a high-speed vehicle chase ensued with King being followed by Springfield Police, Sangamon County Sheriff's deputies, and the GLRFTF. The pursuit lasted for several miles until King drove through a fence and into a field. As GLRFTF members and local officers arrived, King shot himself under the chin with the rifle. King was transported to the hospital in serious condition with head and facial injuries. The GLRFTF previously arrested King in September, 2002 on an outstanding burglary warrant.

Pacific Southwest Regional Fugitive Task Force

Benjamin William Ainsworth was arrested in Hollywood, California on December 17, 2004, by members of the Pacific Southwest Regional Fugitive Task Force (PSWRFTF). Ainsworth, an aspiring actor and personal trainer, was charged by Australian authorities in the state of South Australia with multiple charges including rape and false imprisonment on April 8, 2004. The charges against Ainsworth allege that he forcibly raped or attempted to rape three young women at knifepoint in the city of Adelaide, South Australia between July 2000 and October 2003. In June 2004, Australian authorities contacted the PSWRFTF and requested assistance in locating and apprehending Ainsworth, who was believed to be in the Los Angeles area. During the course of their preliminary investigation, Task Force investigators determined that a provisional warrant for his arrest would need to be obtained through the United States District Court. Working closely with the United States Attorney's Office in Los Angeles, the United States Department of Justice - Office of International Affairs, the Australian Federal Police Liaison at the Consulate in Los Angeles, and the South Australia Police, a complaint and provisional arrest warrant were issued in Los Angeles on December 16, 2004, ordering the arrest of Ainsworth in connection with the Australian charges. Task Force investigators from many of the participating agencies immediately established surveillance at a youth hostel in Hollywood where Ainsworth was believed to be staying. After 27 hours of surveillance, Ainsworth showed up and was taken into custody.
